The first ever Run Hackney half marathon took place on Sunday, 22 June, with over 12,500 runners covering the 13.1 mile the route which wound its way around the borough

CHAMPION EFFORT

OVER 12,500 people took to the borough's streets for a spectacular first ever Run Hackney half marathon on Sunday, 22 June.

In soaring temperatures, the runners – many of whom were raising money for charitable causes – were spurred on to the finish line by lively crowds that came out to cheer them at every stretch of the 13.1 mile race.

The circular route, which began and ended in Hackney Marshes, took in the whole of the borough, passing through Hackney Downs, Hackney Central, Broadway Market, Well Street Common, Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, and Mabley Green.

Jermain Jackman, winner of hit TV talent show 'The Voice', sounded the starting klaxon just after 9am, together with Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe.

Mayor Pipe said: "This is another milestone for the borough that puts Hackney on the map – not only in London – but internationally."

The fast, closed-road course delivered impressive results with Kenyan Peter Emase, of Team Run Fast, winning the elite men's race in a time of 01:04:19.

He said: "It was a good, flat course which is good for me. It was a very well organised race and it was nice to run in Hackney. I will be back next year."

Fellow team mate and race favourite, Boniface Kongin, finished second with a time of 01:06:02. He was followed by two time Sri Lankan Olympian Anuradha Cooray, also from Team Run Fast, in third place, with a time of 01:06:45. Anuradha said: "It was really good. Hackney is cool and there was so much support out on the roads."

The women's race was won by another Kenyan member of Team Run Fast, Gladys Yator, in a time of 01:15:30. She was followed by British ladies Katy Webster and Bel Levene, who took second and third place respectively, in times of 01:20:05 and 01:22:58.

The men's wheelchair race was won by Ashley Archer in a time of 00:59:40, while Susan Cook triumphed in the women's competition, with a time of 1:19:54. The 26-year-old said: "It was awesome to win. I only started racing last October and it's only the second race I've done. I got a personal best."

The roads were lined with cheering supporters, waving flags and banners and displaying the colourful and creative community spirit that Hackney folk are famous for.

The Run Hackney race was originally conceived by the Council as a way of promoting an active and healthy lifestyle

Ready, set, go!

THE race was originally conceived by the Council as a way of promoting an active and healthy lifestyle, while building on the legacy of the London 2012 Games.

The idea came from Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, Cllr Jonathan McShane, who ran in the race. He said: "Huge congratulations to everyone who took part. After so many months of planning, it was great to see the runners out on our streets and the thousands of residents and visitors who

There was a real buzz about the place, evoking the spirit of 2012. It was a brilliant showcase for Hackney lined the route to support them.

"There was a real buzz about the place, evoking the spirit of 2012. It was a brilliant showcase for Hackney, taking in some of the borough's most iconic sites and I hope the runners enjoyed it as much as I did."

The Hackney-based Run Dem Crew acted as pacemakers for the race.

Youngsters also got involved, taking part in an inaugural schools' challenge aimed at four to 11-year-olds. The children completed a total of 12.1 miles prior to race day, and covered the final mile alongside teachers as part of the half marathon route.

The number of people taking part in this inaugural race has already put it in the top 10 largest half marathons in the UK.

Jon Ridgeon, spokesperson for race organisers Go2, said: "From elites to first time runners, Run Hackney has been a fantastic start to the Vitality Run Series. With over 12,500 runners registered, the spirit and support from runners and spectators alike, in hot weather conditions was inspiring. Congratulations to this year's runners, and we hope to see you back in Hackney next year."

Many of the runners raised thousands of pounds for their chosen causes. This includes the official race charities Cancer Research UK and The East End Community Foundation.

Feeling bookish

BOOK lovers celebrated Homerton Library's 40th birthday on 7 June.

The day of free activities included face painting, badge making, storytelling, drumming and dancing.

Highlights included a four kilometre 'history of Homerton heritage' walk and a performance by Djembe drumming group African Voice, which got the party started with their uplifting beats.

DJs from the Vinyl Library continued the celebrations playing a selection of 45s. For some of the younger guests it was their first introduction to record players and vinyl.

There was also a variety of stalls to browse through and visitors were given free herbs by community group Have a Go Gardening.

"I learned to read in the library and I come every couple of weeks. It's free and local... and the staff are very friendly"

Staff at Homerton Library join in the 40th birthday celebrations

Later in the evening Sam Berkson, aka 'Angry Sam', and 'Uncle' Errol McGlashan wowed the audience with their witty and passionate performance poetry. Sam delivered his 'ode to the bicycle', based on his experiences of cycling in Hackney.

Retired resident Eddie O'Brien has lived in Hackney all his life and used the library since it first opened 40 years ago.

He said: "I learned to read in the library and I come every couple of weeks. It's free and local, and I can read the papers, use the internet and the staff are very friendly."

Monica Blake added: "The people here are really friendly and the library is a real community hub. We celebrated the 30th birthday so we really wanted to mark the 40th."

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health Social Care and Culture, said: "Libraries can play such an important role in the community and Homerton is a wonderful example of this. It's a real community hub with so much on offer. The Council is committed to keeping all our libraries open and maintaining some of the longest opening hours in the country."

Homecoming king

JERMAIN Jackman, winner of hit TV talent show 'The Voice', was given a hero's welcome at a reception held in his honour at Hackney Town Hall.

Friends, family, celebrities and politicians gathered on 8 June to celebrate Jermain's recent success on the BBC show. The 19-year-old former member of Hackney Youth Parliament, dubbed the 'singing politician', captured viewers' hearts with his impressive vocal range and passion for politics.

He was welcomed to the Town Hall by the former Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Michael Desmond, who said: "Jermain has made a difference to the community – and it has been positive. By supporting local people

On his determination to follow his interests in music and politics Jermain said: “I hate when people say I can't do music and politics, I can!

“The media needs to focus on productive young people, this will send out a positive message and encourage others to do the same.”

Inspired to go into politics by a school visit from Diane Abbott, MP for Hackney North and Stoke Newington, Jermain thanked her and Labour Party leader, Ed Miliband, who were both present, for being inspirational role models.

Ed said: “Jermain is an incredible talent showing what so many other people in Hackney can do. He is a credit to the community.”

Other VIP guests included EastEnders actor Rudolph Walker; 'The Voice' vocal coaches Ali Tennant and Jay Henry; former Deputy Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Antoinette Bramble, and retired police Superintendent Leroy Logan.

Jermain recently announced he had signed to London Records, part of Universal Music, and is currently working on his debut album set for release later this year.

News in brief

Buses go cash-free from 6 July

BUSES in the capital are set to go cash-free from 6 July. Transport for London (TfL) has announced that passengers will only be able to pay by contactless debit card or Oyster. TfL is also updating the Oyster card system so that users with a positive balance can make one more journey by bus even if they have insufficient funds to cover the full cost of the fare.

Blow the whistle on violence

WITH the World Cup underway, the Council is reminding residents of the support available to anyone suffering domestic violence.

A recent study found that during the 2010 World Cup cases of domestic violence rose by an average of 25 per cent after an England match, win or lose.

The Council's domestic violence team works in partnership with organisations across the borough – including the police and charities – to support victims to find a refuge, report a crime, or just to have someone to talk to. Services in Hackney include a confidential helpline on: 0800 056 0905 (free from a landline, 9.30am to 5pm, Monday to Friday).

There are also counselling facilities for victims of trauma and a domestic violence court. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/safer-communities-domestic-violence-support

There is also a 24-hour national helpline on: 0808 2000 247. In an emergency call: 999.

Cheer on the Tour de France

IT'S just two weeks before the Tour de France comes to Hackney. On Monday 7 July competitors in the world famous race will ride from Cambridge to London, passing through East London, and finishing in The Mall. This forms part of the first three stages of the tour – known as the Grand Depart – which takes place in the UK this year. Spectators will be free to line the majority of the route. In Hackney, this will be down the A106 Ruckholt Road/Eastway then left into Waterden Road. The best viewing spots will be the north of Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park (where a big screen is planned) and the Lea Bridge Road junction with Orient Way. The tour's publicity caravan – a convoy of floats, vehicles and entertainers – is due to pass through Hackney about 1pm. The cyclists are expected to come speeding through the borough at about 3pm. Roads along the route will be closed from 10am to about 6pm and there will be transport disruption across London. For more info, visit: www.tfl.gov.uk/tourdefrance

Creativity Works aims to develop specific skills and on the job experiences for young Londoners

Fashion forward

A NEW project in Hackney looks set to give 30 talented young people from diverse backgrounds their big break in the fashion world.

'Creativity Works: Fashion' will take the handpicked group of 18 to 20-year-olds through a three week training programme which culminates in a trip to Paris to see top designer Jean Paul Gaultier at work in his studio. They will then complete six weeks work experience with leading industry names like DAZED Group.

Each student will have a mentor and the programme includes talks by industry experts and workshops on a range of subjects related to the fashion world, including photography, branding, events management and PR.

Nadine Makeida Davis, 22, from Hackney, is one of the young people selected to take part.

She said: "Everyone's so, so excited about Paris, they

"In the creative industry you have to think laterally. Don't wait for that bit of technology to come along" are giving us opportunities we wouldn't necessarily know how to access. They are giving us the contacts and I think it's just for us to make the most of it."

The programme began on 6 June with introductory sessions at The Mill Co Project in the Rose Lipman Building, N1.

Underground music photographers and visual artists Tim and Barry kicked off proceedings with a workshop about their experiences in the creative industry.

The duo spoke about their initial struggles with finances, the importance of branding, and how they overcame problems such as lack of equipment to achieve their goals.

Barry said: "In the creative industry you have to think laterally. Don't wait for that bit of technology to come along, do things with what you have. It's important to know your strengths."

In the next few weeks the students will also tour the Paul Smith exhibition at the Design Museum; hear from the makers of ASOS clothing; and visit the London College of Fashion.

The programme is also linked with the Barbican's pop-up fashion market Ram Place. Set to run from 12 to 20 July, a derelict building off Morning Lane will be transformed into an events and retail space for alternative fashion and street style. The students will have a stall there so they can sell work produced during the course.

Creativity Works: Fashion is delivered by Create Jobs and Hackney Council on behalf of the Mayor's Fund for London.

Fun day activities included healthy eating workshops, African drumming and dancing, gardening, face painting, health checks, and a local history project

Fun day morning

The Woodberry Down Estate regeneration fun day gave useful advice and fun activities to residents

HUNDREDS of residents enjoyed tasty food, live music and free activities at the annual Woodberry Down Estate regeneration fun day.

A rainy morning gave way to summer sunshine as around 500 people enjoyed the free event on 7 June at The Green, a new park created as part of the estate's redevelopment.

There was a wide range of information and activities on offer including healthy eating workshops; African drumming and dancing; gardening; health checks; and a local history project run by the Woodberry Down Community Organisation of estate residents (WDCO).

The event also celebrated the first anniversary of the opening of The Edge youth hub, which hosted a ceremony where young people were presented with achievement awards.

“ It was great to see residents enjoying the Woodberry Down fun day, and finding out how we're regenerating the estate ”

The youth hub also held tours and tasters session for people to get an idea of the activities and equipment it offers.

More than 20 volunteers from Manor House Development Trust helped out on the day, while representatives from the Council, Berkeley Homes, Genesis Housing Association and WDCO were on hand to answer residents' questions about the 20-year redevelopment programme.

A model of how the estate will look in the future was provided by Berkeley Homes, as well as a mini-digger for children to have a ride on.

Cllr Philip Glanville, Cabinet Member for Housing, said: “It was great to see so many residents enjoying the fun day, and finding out how we're regenerating the estate, replacing unfit for

"The regeneration of Woodberry Down is a true partnership between the Council, residents, Berkeley Homes, Genesis and many others, which is allowing us – amid unprecedented budget cuts – to transform this area."

So far, 862 homes have been built on the estate, with 421 for social renting, and 135 for shared ownership.

Ultimately, the programme will see 5,500 new social rented, private and shared ownership homes built together with a range of community facilities including an extended primary school, a new children's centre, and further new public parks such as The Green.

St Mary's Secret Garden manager and senior horticultural therapist, Paula Yassine, believes community gardening gives people a sense of being in touch with nature and their local surroundings

WANDERING through St Mary's Secret Garden on a mid-summer's morning one's senses are overwhelmed by sweet floral smells, brightly coloured flowers and a feeling of calm.

Nestled in the middle of one of Hoxton's largest estates this restful retreat is a welcome relief to urban living. Garden manager and senior horticultural therapist, Paula Yassine, describes it as a 'peaceful oasis in the middle of a busy area of the capital.'

It provides placements for people with learning difficulties, mental health problems and other long-term illnesses, as well as accredited training for the wider community, and volunteering opportunities.

Paula explains: "St Mary's is a community garden first and foremost.

As you can see we're in the middle of a large estate and not everyone has access to a garden. It gives you a sense of being in touch with nature as well as engaging people with support needs."

Paula has been working with people outdoors for over 20 years providing training in forestry, conservation and horticulture.

She says: "Horticultural training was never on my career list. I was originally a nurse and realised there was a better way of seeing people get better. I went to university in the middle of a field in Wales where I stayed. I joined a 'training for work' scheme run by the National Trust and then came to London."

Paula worked for the Harington Scheme, which is a training centre for young people with learning disabilities, for seven years before joining “Community for me means everyone getting on together as best they can and working together on something”

St Mary's Secret Garden in 2002. She says: "I enjoy working here because of the range of people I get to work with. I work with people with learning disabilities, mental health issues, older people and school groups. It is a reflection of the whole community."

Covering three-quarters of an acre, the garden is made up of different themed outdoor 'rooms': a herb and sensory area, decking, vegetable and fruit growing area, woodland with beehives, wildlife meadow, small pond, and greenhouse.

Wheelchair users can access the garden, and it is designed around a circular path so people with dementia can wander around safely. It's also 'high maintenance', which keeps service users and volunteers busy with the garden all year round.

Paula says: "Gardening is good for you physically, mentally and spiritually. It helps you increase your friendship circles and helps you feel part of society again. People who work in the garden see others enjoying the fruits of their labour."

Community spirit is particularly important to Paula – and something she believes Hackney has in abundance. She has lived in Hoxton, Dalston and Lower Clapton for over 12 years.

She says: "Community for me means everyone getting on together as best they can and working together on something. It means people looking out for each other and being friends with each other, even if they might not usually be friends with that person.

"That's the great joy of Hackney – you have people from absolutely everywhere in the world. Where else can you get the opportunity to meet these people without paying loads of money to travel?"

"Hackney really is different and I think working in a community setting like this has opened my eyes. I've met so many great people."

Getting more cyclists on the road

OVER 200 people attended the annual Hackney Cycling Conference to discuss how to improve the borough's roads and open spaces to encourage more people to get on their bikes.

Politicians, campaigners, planners and academics who spoke at the Council-run event on 6 June praised the work that has gone on in Hackney to make it London's top cycling borough, with 15 per cent of residents commuting by bike. But they also acknowledged that London has a long way to go before it competes with the top cycling cities in the world.

One speaker who showed the audience at Hackney

Picturehouse what can be achieved was Klaus Bondam, director of the Danish Cyclists' Federation, and former Mayor for technical and environmental administration in Copenhagen, where around 40 per cent of people commute by bicycle.

Klaus stressed that the key to getting more cyclists on the road was teaching children to cycle, and designing streets that work for both pedestrians and cyclists. He said: "They told us the car gives us freedom, but there is no freedom in sitting in a traffic jam."

Dr Rachel Aldred, from the University of Westminster, argued that more women and older people need to get into cycling. She claimed that in Holland and Germany there is a fairly even distribution of ages and genders amongst cyclists, whereas in the UK less than a third of bike journeys are made by women and very few people over the age of 50 cycle.

“The day we can ride two abreast chatting to our friends... is the day we have civilised our streets”

Shadow transport minister, Mary Creagh, talked about the importance of the four Es (education, enforcement, engineering and encouragement).

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for

Neighbourhoods, chaired the conference. She said that much work has already been done to make cycling easier and safer in Hackney, with many more improvements in the pipeline.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, added that provision for cycling is considered in all new road designs, citing Pitfield Street in Hoxton as an example.

The conference also saw the launch of the Cycle Hackney smartphone app, which tracks cyclists' journeys around the borough. It allows cyclists to highlight any issues they come across during their journey and put forward comments and suggestions which are tagged to locations. The data will help the Council in its bid to improve conditions for cyclists, pedestrians and other road users.

The final speaker, David Dansky from Cycle Training UK, concluded: "The day we can ride two abreast chatting to our friends with a cup of coffee in our hands on the way to work is the day we have civilised our streets."

The conference launched a programme of cycling activities in the borough and was followed, on 7

June, by a showcase event at Hackney City Farm and Haggerston Park, hosted by the Hackney Cycling Campaign.

Members of Hackney BMX Club ran drop-in sessions and showed off their moves. London Green Cycles brought cargo bikes to try out, and Hackney Bike Workshop taught people how to fix their own bikes. Other highlights included sessions by the London Bike Polo Association, and cycle skills training.

Bob Mazzer's Underground

Until 13 July, Howard Griffin Gallery, 189 Shoreditch High Street, E1 6HU

PHOTOGRAPHER Bob Mazzer has been capturing images of life on the London Underground since the 1980s, while commuting to work as a projectionist at a cinema in Kings Cross.

It is the first time this body of work has ever been exhibited together in a gallery. The pictures show changing fashions, the relationships between people, and even passengers smoking and drinking on the tube, back in the day when it wasn't banned. Bob said: "Every day I travelled to Kings Cross and back. Coming home late at night, it was like a party and I felt like the tube was mine and I was there to take the pictures."

Bob Mazzer's 'Underground' is on at the Howard Griffin Gallery in Shoreditch until 13 July.

Not too late to learn

RESIDENTS found it's never too late to broaden their horizons at a series of free workshops during Adult Learners' Week.

More than 900 people took part in taster sessions at venues across the borough. A launch event outside Hackney Learning Trust on 14 June featured music, dance and circus performances, plus advice on what courses to take.

The range of educational activities offered by the Council during the week – in a bid to encourage adults back into learning – included healthy cooking lessons, public speaking, circus arts and sign language. The specially-tailored sessions were designed to enhance employability, boost confidence and self-esteem, and help adults support their children at school.

Ella Ali, 32, attended a healthy cook and eat

“ This week proves it's never too late to learn something new ”

on a budget session at Morningside Children's Centre, E9.

She said: “I really want my family to eat more healthily so this workshop was great for getting tips.

“We learnt to make lots of healthy food including Italian salads. I normally cook chickpeas, but I'd never used them cold in salads before – absolutely delicious! I would recommend this workshop to friends and family and want to learn more in the future.”

Other sample sessions offered were baking, local history, floristry and first aid. While those looking to boost their technical skills were able to sign up to an introduction to the internet, e-mail, smartphones and iPads, or find out how to design a website and use computer programmes like Adobe Photoshop.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “This week proves it's never too late to learn something new. The fact that over 900 people signed up to take part in the sessions shows that many residents are keen to broaden their horizons; we're here to support them.

“Our adult learning team has something for everyone so why not talk to them today about how you can help yourself?”

Adult Learners' Week is run by education and learning providers in Hackney and brought together by the Council's Adult Learning Services.

News in brief

Funding for Birkbeck students

BIRKBECK University has teamed up with ArcelorMittal to fund six East London residents' further education. ArcelorMittal, the firm behind the Orbit in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, will pay for four undergraduate bursaries, tuition fees for one postgraduate, and support for a student researching a PhD in crystallography – the study of atomic and molecular structures.

To qualify for consideration, potential students will need to have an East London postcode and a household income of less than £25,000.

Birkbeck, which is London's only specialist provider of evening higher education, opened a second campus in Stratford last November.

Tricia King, head of strategic engagement at Birkbeck, said: “We are very grateful for this opportunity as it will provide opportunities for people otherwise unable to study because of financial constraints.”

To apply for the grant, contact Matthew Jackson on: 020 7380 3169; or e-mail: matthew.jackson@bbk.ac.uk

Commemoration & celebration

YOUNGSTERS at The Urswick School took part in an assembly to commemorate the 70th anniversary of D-Day on 6 June.

They heard about the day the invasion of Nazi-occupied Western Europe began, which eventually resulted in an Allied victory in the Second World War.

Deputy headteacher Jodie Hassan led the assembly, and spoke about the experiences of her grandfather who was just 18-years-old when the war broke out and served in the Navy.

Diane Abbott, MP for Hackney North and Stoke Newington, was a special guest at the assembly and also presented students David Dang and Michael Sobanjo, both 13, with gold maths challenge certificates. Only six per cent of all entrants in the United Kingdom Maths Trust awards received this certificate.

FREE cycling lessons for big kids!

Cycle to secondary school with confidence! Book a transition cycle lesson and a qualified instructor will help you plan and practice the best route to school

Free one-to-one cycle skills training over the summer for students making the transition to secondary school in September.

The training will look at planning an appropriate cycling route for the journey from home to school, building on-road confidence and skills, road safety awareness, and practicing urban riding so that the first trip to secondary school will be a breeze. The session will also be a useful refresher for Bikeability lessons at primary school.

Book a session with a qualified cycling instructor at a time, date and location of your choice, call 020 7232 4383 and ask for a 'transition' lesson.

Getting involved

MORE than 200 people attended a youth involvement day designed to highlight the many opportunities for under 19s in the borough.

The event at Urswick School, E9, on 7 June, was a chance to find out more about training, education, volunteering, leisure and employment in Hackney.

There was career advice from the Council's Ways into Work scheme and consultancy Always INSYNC, while staff from Hackney Community College were on hand to discuss the variety of educational programmes they offer.

Sexual health clinic Brook and counselling service Off Centre provided sexual health advice and bullying awareness information.

East London Radio recorded blogs of young peoples' views, and documentary filmmaker Whitty-Gordon production encouraged people to share their favourite memories of the borough on video.

Other activities on the day included t-shirt design,

BMX time trials, massages, martial arts, penalty shoot-outs, a photography class and manicures.

Nemesis Street Dance crew entertained the crowd with performances which encouraged more young people to join the group.

A series of prize draws throughout the day – with great electronic gadgets up for grabs – captured the attention of young and old alike.

Dejon Vanderpool, 15, said: "It's been a fun day, there is so much to do. I hope they do more of these events. I would definitely recommend them."

The day was organised by Hackney Homes. Its chair Rupert Tyson, said: "We are pleased with the success of the event. We are committed to the development of our young residents' involvement in the community and it is great to see young people take an active interest in the services available to them."

You will attend the Clinical Executive Committee and you will be a member of the CCG Remuneration and audit Committees bringing an important lay balance to our clinical work.

We are looking for someone who:

- Has their roots deep in our local communities.
- Has the skills and experience needed to play a leadership role in a small but complex organisation – including chairing skills.
- Is passionate about making sure the voice of patients and the public are heard.
- Has some knowledge and experience of how the NHS and the wider health and social care system works.

Typically the post will need you to commit about 5 half days each month and the pay is currently £18,000 a year paid on a monthly basis.

If you think you might be the right person to champion our patients and our public, please contact Karl Thompson (karl.thompson@nhs.net) for an information pack. If you would like to have an informal discussion about the role, please contact Clare Highton, CCG Clinical Chair on clare.highton@nhs.net or Paul Haigh, CCG Chief Officer, on paul.haigh@nhs.net

City and Hackney CCG First Annual General Meeting 16 July 2014

We would like to invite you to our first Annual General Meeting on Wednesday 16 July, 2014, 6-8pm, at the Geffrye Museum, 136 Kingsland Road, London E2 8EA.

Agenda for the meeting

We will share our vision for the local population of City and Hackney and update you on our work to date and our proposed commissioning intentions for 2014-15.

Presentation of the Annual Report

At the Annual General Meeting, we will present our first annual report as a CCG and lead a public discussion on our current and ongoing activities.

Questions

It is also an opportunity to ask questions of the Governing Body. You can also submit questions in advance of the event by Wednesday 9 July by emailing CAHCCG. cityandhackneyccg@nhs.net or by sending them to the address below.

Patient and Public Involvement (PPI)

City and Hackney CCG believes that our residents should be actively involved in our work. We are hoping to find more people like you to take part in our PPI committees. If you are interested in a specific area of our work, or want to get involved more generally, please come along.

The Chair, Chief Officer and Chief Financial Officer will also be present to answer questions on the day. Each Programme board will have a stall where you can ask questions and find out more about getting involved.

Places are limited and we would ask you RSVP by Friday 4 July to CAHCCG. cityandhackneyccg@nhs.net, indicating:

- Whether you will be attending
- If you have any accessibility requirements

City and Hackney Clinical Commissioning Group is responsible for providing and delivering health services in the City and Hackney.

The '10 Minute Shake Up' campaign uses a bit of Disney magic to inspire children to get active in fun, manageable 10 minute bursts of exercise

Shake up this summer

CHILDREN in Hackney are set to get extra inspiration to be more active this summer as the NHS and Disney launch a major new health campaign.

The '10 Minute Shake Up' uses a bit of Disney magic to encourage youngsters to try manageable 10 minute exercise sessions.

The campaign, run by Change4Life, targets the four in five children who don't do the recommended one hour of exercise per day, and the 40 per cent who do less than half an hour per day, by helping to break it down into short bursts of fun. This is enough to improve fitness and health.

“ Making sure kids stay active and entertained throughout the long summer holidays can be a struggle ”

The Council is backing '10 Minute Shake Up' as part of its Get Hackney Healthy campaign. Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Making sure kids stay active and entertained throughout the long summer holidays can be a struggle but Change4Life with Disney are on hand to make things a little easier."

Those who sign up for the '10 Minute Shake Up' will receive a free pack containing ideas and tools to help kids achieve the recommended one hour of moderate to vigorous activity per day.

Packs include a stopwatch, wall chart and

'10 Minute Shake Up' Disney character activity cards. There will also be online content to keep kids inspired over the summer.

To sign up for a free pack, visit: www.nhs.uk/change4life/Pages/change-for-life

For more fun, healthy activities this summer, why not go on a 'Hackney Wild Walk?' Designed to encourage children to enjoy exploring the borough on foot, these short walks will help families discover secret places in Hackney, and encourage residents to get active.

News in brief

Mind volunteers celebrated

THE City and Hackney branch of mental health charity Mind celebrated the work of their dedicated volunteers with a day of fun, free activities.

Around 20 guests were treated to hand massages, yoga and relaxation sessions at the event on 6 June. There was also a healthy buffet and everyone who attended was given a goody bag to thank them for their hard work. Coordinator Amy Byrne said: "I was really pleased that volunteers went home feeling relaxed and happy knowing that all their hard work is well appreciated and worthwhile."

The event was organised as part of national Volunteers Week, which celebrates the contribution made by the millions of people who give up their time to help others across the UK.

Stay healthy if going abroad

HACKNEY families are being advised to make sure that all their summer travel health needs are covered.

Anyone planning on travelling overseas during the school holidays should seek health advice from their GP at least six to eight weeks before their trip.

Booking a travel health appointment can help prevent common travel-related infections. It can also stop children becoming unwell on their return to the UK and ensure that they are able to go back to school.

High risk countries for travel-related illnesses include Pakistan, India, Bangladesh, Ghana and Nigeria.

For more information, residents can speak to their GPs, or visit: www.nathnac.org/travel

The first Wellbeing Games for people with mental health problems

PEOPLE with mental health problems, their families and NHS staff took part in the first ever Wellbeing Games in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.

Over 360 guests tried different activities ranging from boxing and Zumba, to relay races and yoga.

Olympic table tennis player Darius Knight was also on hand to join in matches and pass on some top tips.

The event was organised by the East London NHS Foundation Trust at the Copper Box arena on 11 June. Marie Gabriel, chair of the Trust, said: "It has been great to see so many people from across the trust coming together and taking part. The links between mental and physical wellbeing are well researched and I am pleased we have been able to support people to learn more about different types of exercise, the benefits of being active and to have some fun.

"The venue has made the day extra special for everyone and added to the team spirit."

The trust hopes to make the games an annual event to raise awareness of the positive effects that physical activity has on people's mental health and to provide an opportunity for service users to come together with NHS staff while taking part in sport.

Lost sport of greyhound racing

By Sally England

GREYHOUND racing was one of Britain's most popular spectator sports in its 1940s heyday, with 77 licensed tracks across the country, attracting over 50 million visitors each year.

Two of these tracks were in Hackney at Millfields Road in Clapton, and Waterden Road in Hackney Wick. Clapton Stadium originally opened as Whittles Athletic Ground, and was a venue for whippet racing, but its main use became football when Clapton Orient (now Leyton Orient) moved there in 1869. The site was redeveloped and renamed Millfields Road.

The greyhound facilities were designed by engineer and architect Sir Owen

Williams at a cost of over £80,000, opening in April 1928 as London's fourth greyhound stadium, just two years after the first British race was held at Belle Vue, Manchester. A restaurant was added in 1930, with a second built in 1939, as well as covered stands.

Waterden Road opened four years later in 1932 and, like Millfields Road, was home to more than one sport: greyhound racing and speedway. The original stands could hold 10,000 spectators, increasing to 15,000 in 1953.

The oval track was known for its long straights and easy bends, while the track at Clapton was shorter and almost circular, with wide bends that made it one of the fastest in the country. Because of this, Millfields Road became the permanent venue for one of the most important classic events in the sport, the 400 yard Scurry Gold Cup.

Greyhound racing appealed to working men in particular, as the entry fee was cheaper than horse racing, and the venues were easier for an urban population to get to. It was also the only place that many people could enjoy a legal flutter, when lack of money meant that obtaining credit at a bookmakers' was impossible.

Changes in gambling legislation led to the gradual decline of the sport however. When betting shops opened in the mid 1960s it became possible to gamble on a race without being at the venue, a trend that has increased since, with bookmakers able to stay open late and gambling on the internet.

Because dog races last only a matter of seconds, they did not prove to be good television, and the profile of the sport suffered. The rise of alternative forms of entertainment has meant that only greyhound tracks that focussed on offering additional attractions, such as restaurants and party facilities, have survived.

The Greyhound Racing Association bought the Millfields Road stadium from its shareholders in 1967, but sold it again only two years later. Clapton struggled on for a few more years, with the final race held on 1 January, 1974. The stadium was eventually demolished and the site used for the construction of Millfields estate.

Waterden Road remained unchanged and much-loved for many years. Then in the 1990s a huge redevelopment plan was announced to turn the venue into a multi-million pound stadium for the 21st century, open six nights a week.

But this was before Hackney Wick was transformed for the London 2012 Games, and there were problems with transport links to the new attraction.

The stadium opened in October 1995, but went into receivership the same night and closed only 14 months later in January 1997.

The site was bulldozed in 2003 as work progressed on the London 2012 bid, the success of which ultimately brought all the connections and facilities the Hackney Wick stadium had needed to survive, only years too late.

Today only the Wimbledon dog track survives in London, with just 24 registered stadiums elsewhere, along with some independent venues.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

IN this edition, Shoreditch Trust presents a recipe from its healthy eating programme which aims to help residents produce tasty and seasonal food throughout the year.

This salad can be served as a side dish or a main course. It is a great way of using tinned fish and contains healthy fats, proteins, carbohydrates, vegetables and calcium in the anchovies. If you use sweet potatoes it adds to the vitamin content as well. The salad also represents the 'eat as a rainbow' colour concept, which is a good way of achieving a balanced diet.

Salad Niçoise

Makes 4-6 servings

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
20 mins

Ingredients

For the salad

- 100g mixed salad leaves
- 2 small gem lettuces (optional)
- 2 tins of sustainable, oily fish (in oil)
- 100g French beans
- 4 ripe tomatoes, or small punnet of cherry tomatoes
- 4 hard boiled eggs (each cut into 4)
- 10-12 new potatoes or one large sweet potato
- A handful of black olives (pitted)
- 1 small tin of anchovies in oil
- 3 tablespoons pumpkin seeds/sunflower seeds (optional).

For the salad

- 6 tbsp olive oil
- 1 tsp Dijon mustard
- 2 tbsp white wine vinegar or lemon juice
- Pepper to season.

Method

- Chop the potatoes into bite size pieces and boil for 10-15 mins, or until tender (less for sweet potato)
- Chop the French beans in half and steam for five minutes until just tender
- Boil the eggs for eight minutes until hard, peel and chop into four pieces
- Tear the salad leaves into bite sized pieces and place in a large serving bowl. Chop the tomato into bite size pieces and slice the olives. Drain the tins of fish and flake onto the salad leaves
- Add the green beans, eggs and potatoes once they are cooked. Place the anchovies on top. If adding seeds, dry toast them in a frying pan and sprinkle over the salad
- Place all the dressing ingredients into a bowl, season and whisk well. Pour over the salad and serve.

*Why not get creative in plating up the salad? Find a large serving plate and use your creativity to lay out the salad. The salad in the main picture was prepared by a youth group from the Big House Theatre Company.

Have your say on the proposed route for Crossrail 2

LAST year Transport for London (TfL) and Network Rail consulted residents on proposals for a new north/south Crossrail 2 route.

A number of suggestions about the route from Hertfordshire to Surrey were made and variations have now been proposed. These include: two different route options north of Angel station in Islington, serving either Hackney Central or Dalston Junction; an alternative option for a possible new station in Chelsea; and a short extension of the route from Alexandra Palace to New Southgate.

The massive construction project would involve using sections of the existing tube network and digging new tunnels. The consultation closes on 25 July. To have your say, visit: www.crossrail2.co.uk; or attend a drop-in session at Dalston CLR James Library on 18 and 19 July, from 11am to 3pm; or Hackney Central Library on 15 and 16 July, from 12noon to 7pm.

IN THE MATTER OF THE REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT 1983 AND IN THE MATTER OF A LOCAL GOVERNMENT ELECTION FOR THE HACKNEY SOUTH AND SHOREDITCH KING'S PARK WARD HELD ON MAY 22, 2014 AND IN THE MATTER OF AN ELECTION PETITION

TAKE NOTICE that the Proper Officer under section 128 of the Representation of the People Act 1983 has published and hereby also publishes the petition and gives notice of the petition of Vernon Williams brought against Sharon Patrick, Tom Rahilly, Rebecca Rennison and Tim Shields (Returning Officer) in respect of the said election when the Returning Officer declared Sharon Patrick, Tom Rahilly and Rebecca Rennison to be duly elected councillors.

The petition has been published in the London Borough of Hackney by posting the same at the Town Hall, Hackney, Mare Street, London, E8 1EA, by posting the same on the website of the London Borough of Hackney (www.hackney.gov.uk/election-petition), by making it available free of charge to telephone callers to Lee-Marie Grant on 020 8356 3234, depositing it in the following libraries Hackney Central, Dalston CLR James, Homerton, Clapton and Stamford Hill and by this notice.

In the said petition the Petitioner pleads that the said Sharon Patrick, Tom Rahilly and Rebecca Rennison were not duly elected and that the Returning Officer by himself or his servants or agents committed breaches of election law which affected the result and meant that the election was not conducted substantially in accordance with the law so as to make the result unsafe. Principal complaints include the time at which the count started and security of ballot papers, the failure to supply absent voter and proxy voter lists, the supply of an out of date register and postal voter list, a want of proper maps, the instructions to postal voters and the supply of pencils at polling stations.

In the petition, dated 12 June 2014, the said Petitioner prays that it be determined that the said successful candidates were neither duly elected nor returned, that the election was void and that the Petitioner should have such further or other relief as may be just. The petition records that it is proposed to be served on those named herein and the Director of Public Prosecutions.

Hackney Wild Walks

Three fun walks for kids in Hackney to take their parents on!

Woodberry Down & West Reservoir: wizards, water & wildlife

This 2.1km walk goes through some very new gardens and past a very old reservoir. Learn about how London used to get its water and spot loads of trees, birds and boats.

Key:

Each pink line = approx 100m

Have you got to the end of the street? That's the first 100m under your feet! Next road to take is Kayani Avenue. Walk to the end, where the buildings are new.

Start at Bus Stop V, Woodberry Grove on Seven Sister's Road. Head towards Manor House, and turn first left down a small path between Knaresborough and Kilpeck House. Careful not to miss the entrance – it's quite small.

Wow, is this a wizard's magic ball? If you look closely what can you see?

Remember those rocks you saw on the way, If you can see them again, you've not gone astray. But this time continue along the river. For a mystical sight that might make you shiver.

Here is your first view of the West Reservoir – it was opened in 1833! It is man-made and lined with bricks from the Old London Bridge. Turn right onto the New River Path.

A knotty tree on your right, look closely now and you might see a sprite...

Keep focussed now, fingers crossed for luck, Peer through those reeds you might see a duck!

Can you see the towering castle? Who do you think lives there?
A queen, a king, a princess?
Or is it a wizard's magic lair?
The tower was built as a pumping station, Sending water to homes, providing hydration. Now it's a place to climb and abseil, With very high walls for brave people to scale.

The West Reservoir Centre is the halfway point of the walk. Enjoy the lovely peaceful views and visit the free toilets and the café. You can sign up to kayak, sail or even swim in the open water. Cool!
Once you have enjoyed your break turn back the way you came.

Climbing Castle

Hackney Marsh & Kingsmead: boats, bumps & boulders

A lovely circular walk with woods and wide open spaces, bumps to ride and a boulder to climb.
Look out for one of the amazing adventure playgrounds.

Left after the footbridge, into Daubeney Fields park, Cross the grass, round the football pitch, where players make their mark.

There's the Daubeney Road bridge, appearing into sight, The Water Jugglers sculpture should be on your right. Turning to your left now, cross the bridge you shall, You've reached the half-way point, once you're over the canal.

You can take a short diversion, through the woods on your right, You'll find Hackney Marshes: a great place to fly a kite!

Can you see the adventure playground, an excellent thing? Where you can climb up a tower or swing on a swing. It's your place to dig, dream, laugh, run and play, What kind of adventure will you have today?

Count the canal boats! How many can you see? Which one has the best name?

Leave the park through the car gate, onto Kingsmead Way Cross only when it's safe, and when your grown-up says "ok". Press on south, and keep steady on your feet, Remember to look left and right when crossing Meeson Street!

See this amazing tree with lots of trunks! It's called an elder. How many other types of tree can you see?

Next stop on the route is Hackney Bumps, A skate park for scooters to ride over lumps. For boarders to speed and swoop up the humps, And BMX bikers to practice their jumps.

You're almost at the finish, just 300 metres more, Some secrets are awaiting if you go past number four. Can you see on your right there is a small passage to enter? Behind it lies a garden, playground and community centre.

Can you see the slate on top of the bridge as you cross? Turn left down the steps onto the canal path (or walk on and next left if you want to avoid steps). That's your first 200m done!

Is this big rock an asteroid from space? Or the bogey from the nose of a monstrous race? It's really an art work, of Cornish granite it's made. Can you climb up the sides or sit in its shade?

Start at Bus Stop B, outside Malmsmead House where Kingsmead Way meets Homerton Road. Can you see the tall building with red and yellow panels? Walk towards it and towards the canal.

Haggerston to Hoxton: a giant snake, a stone circle & a secret garden

This is an interesting walk with lots to see! You can bring your scooter as there are no steps. It's 2.1km if you take the Overground back to the start or 2.6km if you walk.
